BUS FIGHT IS CARRIED TO CITIZENS

City Transportation Expert Meets With C. of
C. Committee

PROOF IS REQUIRED

Civic Forces to Be Organized by Chamber of Commerce

A meeting of the railroad and transportation committee of the Glendale chamber of commerce was held at the office of Attorney G. H. King, 103 1/2 East Broadway, yesterday. The purpose of the session was to plan for the advancement generally of the question of transportation between Glendale and Los Angeles, and in particular, to look deeper into the proposed bus line between these two cities.

C. D. Gulick, manager of transportation and bus lines for the city of Glendale, was appointed by Chairman King as a member of this committee, after which Mr. Gulick gave an extremely interesting comparison of the costs, results and general conditions of the gasoline bus lines and the electric systems as they now exist. During his talk he stated that it was generally acknowledged by the owners of electric systems in this country that the electric lines have reached their limit so far as efficiency was concerned, and that in all sections of the country gasoline bus lines are at this time and will in the future replace existing electric lines on account of a more economical operation, and will also be used by these companies for extensions into new territory.

He said that the rapidity with which the gasoline motor bus is being taken up may be seen by the fact that it has not been more than 90 days since any large manufacturer has produced a bus built especially for extensive passenger use, and that at this time there are no less than five of the largest automobile and truck manufacturers in this country who are scouring the country for ideas that may be incorporated in buses of this character. He said that these companies are making the utmost haste in preparing for the manufacture of buses of this character. This all points directly to the wisdom shown by the Glendale city council in its determination to provide a bus line between Glendale and Los Angeles. The members of this body have gone very deeply into the question of the establishment of this bus line and honestly believe that a line of this character would be an excellent investment for the city to make.

A communication from Mr. Gulick to the committee was read, this referring to a letter received by him from the board of public utilities of Los Angeles. It is self-explanatory.

"At this time in the process of securing a permit from the city of Los Angeles, I am advised by the board of public utilities that the city of Los Angeles, that they desire further information along the following lines:

DR. VON KLEINSMID TO SPEAK AT C. OF C. FORUM

New President of University to Make First Speech Here

The Glendale Chamber of Commerce is announcing as a great treat in store for members and their friends a forum dinner to be given next Thursday evening in its banquet hall at 6:30 o'clock, when Dr. R. B. Von Kleinsmid, president of the University of Southern California, will be guest of honor and after-dinner speaker. President Kleinsmid was the organizer of the League of the Southwest and is distinguished as an orator. As the banquet hall will seat only 300, guests are requested to make their reservations early. The charge will be $1 per plate. There will be other speakers and a musical program which will make the function noteworthy.

CITY AUCTIONS PROPERTY
The coffers of the city of Glendale were enriched to the extent of $46,45 today when all property that has been recovered by the police department and not claimed by the owners was sold at auction. Plans were made to hold the auction at the front steps of the city hall but the rain prevented and the sale was held in the council chamber instead.

Makers of Mud Pies Is What Foley Thinks of People of Today

We are a race of mud-pie makers playing with substances and forces from nature but find always that we have just adapted a principal that has always existed, says James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" tonight. He says there is nothing new in the way of energy, that we have developed in the way of electricity, harnessed it and made it serve us in many ways, but the energy of electricity is as old as the world.

"We speak of the moving picture as something new," says Mr. Foley, "when it is as old as seeing. For as long as men have had eyes to see there have been moving pictures with the human eye as the camera."

In the comment on the day's news is an interesting item on the cost of articles used in the operation of a railroad figured in tons of freight. For instance it is figured that in order to purchase one lead pencil it is necessary to haul one ton of freight ten miles. Dr. Frank Crane states that human life is surrounded by regions that trail off into mystery. He talks of the sea serpent and other denizens of the sea in his usual interesting manner.

MISS PANKHURST HOLDS AUDIENCE WITH HER STORY

Received by Representatives of Club, She Is Made Welcome

Miss Cristabel Pankhurst, the famous English suffragette, was guest of honor at a 5 o'clock tea at the club rooms of the Glendale Business and Professional Women's club at which the president, Mrs. Margaret Biggs; the treasurer, Dr. Caroline Payne Jackson, chairman of the house committee, and members of the entertainment committee acted as hostesses. Miss Pankhurst was brought to Glendale by Mesdames Jack Thomas and Mabel Judd who motored to Hollywood for the purpose.

Heads of the various women's organizations of the city had been invited to meet Miss Pankhurst and a pleasant hour in which she said some very pleasant things about California and California women, was spent. She is returning to England in the near future but says she plans to come again in 1923 when she hopes to enjoy a real, typical sunny California winter. This year's experience has reminded her of "dear old England."

The list of ladies who had the pleasure of meeting Miss Pankhurst included Mrs. P. E. Maxwell, Mrs. Pearl Kittenhouse, Mrs. W. Warner, Mrs. E. Williams, Miss Clara Stephens, Mrs. John Robert White, Mrs. Margaret Biggs, Mrs. Caroline Payne Jackson, Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, Mrs. E. B. Wyman, Miss Alma Geiger, Mrs. Jack Thomas, Mrs. Mabel Judd, Dr. Jesse Russell, Miss Ethel Preston, Miss Corinne Orff.

Miss Pankhurst was the guest of the club until her lecture the same evening in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce.

Before the lecture began Mrs. Margaret Biggs, the president, introduced Miss Alma Geiger, a member of the club who will be one of the artists in its next entertainment, and who played the following piano numbers, receiving great applause: "Prelude in G minor" (Rachmaninoff) and "Tarentelle No. 3 from Venezia e Napoli."

By special request Miss Pankhurst gave an outline of the militant suffrage movement in England and how the idea originated. She told of the paralysis of the votes-for-women movement in that country in spite of the flame kept burning on the altar by a few faithful adherents of the cause who included her own parents. It had come to be a joke and a bore with no advance being made, how indignantly she became on attaining womanhood to discover the restrictions under which British women lived, and her study of ways and means to arouse attention and interest in the cause. Observing that when labor was dissatisfied and staged a demonstration which held up London traffic, members of parliament got excited and started an investigation of the labor demands, she conceived the idea of carefully staged suffrage demonstrations to provoke the same thing. These were exaggerated by the press, she declared, and members of parliament pretended to fear for their lives, whereas the ranks of militants contained not a single member who would have hurt a fly.

When the war broke out and came like a bomb from the blue sky, particularly to France, to which she and fellow suffragettes had been banished, and they saw how England was threatened, they joyfully dropped their own war and rendered their services to the government serving throughout the conflict whenever and wherever they could. In grateful recognition of their work, the government voluntarily offered them partial suffrage, which they gratefully accepted.

INSIDE TALE OF THE FOUR POWER PACT

The Making of the Treaty
Is Described by the United Press

EXCLUSIVE ACCOUNT

Framed by Hughes Balfour and Japanese
Ambassador

(Copyright, 1922, by United Press)
WASHINGTON, March 11.—The four power Pacific treaty was framed around the arms conference table from drafts submitted by Secretary of State Hughes, Arthur J. Balfour and Ambassador Shidehara of Japan.

It is a composite picture of the drafts presented by the leaders. No one man wrote the pact, as has been charged in the senate, although the treaty in its final form more nearly resembles the draft prepared by Shidehara. Its formation was prompted by Anglo-Japanese suggestions that a new treaty be drawn to scrap the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

The above is the answer to the question "who wrote the four power pact?"—now the center of the stormy debate in the senate which threatens to menace ratification of the treaty. It is based on information obtained when the United Press exclusively gave America the first news that the treaty had been framed and approved by "the big three" and other information collected since the conference from reliable diplomatic sources.

The "inside" story of the treaty's framing is this: Prince Tokugawa, Japanese delegate, made the first public suggestion that an understanding between the United States, Great Britain and Japan be framed to replace the Anglo-Japanese alliance. He then, at a dinner, broached the subject to Arthur Balfour and Sir Auckland Geddes of the British delegation.

The British approved his plan, but suggested there might be some difficulty in getting it through the senate. Tokugawa replied it might be in the form of an "understanding" not necessitating senate ratification.

Hughes, early in the conference, informed Balfour and Kato, chief Japanese delegate, that this country stood for the scrapping of the alliance and that the conference might as well go no further unless this were done. Great Britain and Japan stated their willingness to scrap the alliance under satisfactory agreement to replace it.

Seeing this was the only way of getting rid of the alliance, which he regarded as a menace to the United States, Hughes entered into negotiations after making it plain that the new understanding must be in the form of a treaty to be ratified by the senate, and must be in such form as to preserve the peace of the Pacific.

Balfour submitted the first draft in the form of an agreement between the three countries. This was said to be virtually a triple alliance and it was rejected. Then Shidehara, on his sick bed, drew up his draft and continued to participate in the negotiations through a confidential messenger. Hughes, after consulting the American delegation, then presented a draft. Other drafts were made but out of these three principal ones the "big three"—Hughes, Balfour and Kato—wrote the treaty in secret sessions at the state department and at Hughes' home.

They gave their approval on December 2.

The United States proposed that France be included in the treaty, because of her far Eastern interests. This was toward the end of the negotiations. Great Britain and Japan acquiesced. Rene Viviani suggested that the protective features of the treaty be extended to the Asiatic mainland, apparently so they would apply to French Indo-China. This was rejected.

During the week following December 2, favorable replies from the four governments were received. The final answer being presented at a meeting at Hughes' home on December 8. Senator Lodge, then at a plenary session on December 10 proclaimed the treaty to the world.

THE FLAPPER WINS—IS CALLED MORE CHARMING THAN GIRL 50 YEARS AGO

The flapper won out when the charms of the modern girl were compared with those of the girl of fifty years ago during a debate held by the Modern club of Philadelphia. The question was "Resolved, that the modern girl has greater ability, more charm and wears a better style of dress than the girl of the mid-Victorian period." Mrs. L. F. Mulford, shown above (at left) represented the modern girl at the debate. Mrs. Pennington H. Way wore the costume of a mid-Victorian girl.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH DEDICATION SET FOR EARLY JUNE

Work Being Pushed Rapidly to Completion;
Other Notes

If present plans of the building committee of the Christian church do not miscarry the grand dedication of this church will take place on this first Sunday in June. The members of this committee are planning to make the dedication of this edifice one of the big events of the year, and already steps are being taken in the preparation of an unusually fine program.

Since the church building was started, early in August, W. G. Boyd, contractor, has been rushing the construction work as rapidly as possible, and, according to a statement issued this morning, the work that remains to be done on this building will be done in the shortest possible time.

The roof for this structure will be finished with in ten days, if the rain does not interfere too much with the work, and just as soon as this is finished work on the stucco walls will be started. Already preparations are being made for the erection of these walls. With the walls finished no time will be lost in finishing up the interior work. When finished the building will be one of the finest church edifices in Glendale, the

BURGLARS VISIT GLENDALE STORES

Steal Tools, Jewelry and Lumber in One Night's Raid

Burglars are again at work in Glendale. Yesterday the police blotter shows three reports of robberies filed that occurred during the night and previous day. These thefts total several hundred dollars.

T. G. Boyd reported that some time Friday night tools valued at $150 had been stolen from his home at 116 North Isabel street.

A. Barlow, who conducts a second hand store at 624 East Broadway, reported that his store had been robbed of a lady's gold watch, two razors, a cheaper watch and pocket knife. Mr. Barlow placed a valuation of $25 on the goods stolen. He said that he believes they were stolen while he was in the rear of the store.

C. M. Biggs, 632 West Alexander street, reported that about 500 feet of lumber had been stolen from 501 Pioneer drive.

TYN BOYS MISSING
Members of the Glendale police department were requested this morning by Officer Wilson of the Turbank department to assist in the search of Ervin Tyn. 17 years old and his 14 year old brother, Egon. The request stated that the two boys ran away from home last night. Their description is as follows: Ervin Tyn—17 years old; height, 5 feet 1 inch; weight, 130 pounds; light brown hair and brown eyes. MISS MIDCALE SUCCUMBS TO SICKNESS

Vice Principal of Intermediate School Passes
After Long Illness

EARNEST WORKER

Identified With Schools
She Is Mourned by Many Friends

The death of Clara Midcale this morning at 3 o'clock at her home, 111 North Orange street, has brought grief to many hearts for she was greatly beloved in Glendale, where she has been a teacher in the Intermediate school since 1913, and of recent years a vice principal. A woman of charm and many delightful characteristics, she endeared herself to the community by her willingness to render effective and enthusiastic service in any good cause for the general good.

She was a member of the First Methodist church and her influence has been felt there as member of the choir, leader of the Queen Esther class, and in other organizations.

During the world war no one was more zealous or unselfish in service. Because she was so capable and well beloved by her fellow teachers she was made the first president of the City Teachers' club, organized about two years ago.

She was also a charter member of the Women's auxiliary of the American Legion, and a member of the Women's Relief corps.

But it is in the school, where she taught and in the Parent-Teacher association of which she was a member that she will be most missed except for the great loss that will be felt in the home from which she has departed. No school activity could be planned in which she was not interested or to which she was not ready to contribute, and the teachers with whom she worked are the people who have most to say of her fine character and comradeship.

She was born in Windsor, Ontario, April 18, 1874. She is mourned by three sisters—Miss Alice Midcale, Mrs. Ethel Haskell and Mrs. H. L. Reed, all of Glendale, and five brothers, Holman P. Midcale and Walter Midcale of this city; J. W. Midcale of Saginaw, Michigan; Robert Midcale of Honolulu, and George Midcale of Ventura.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

DEPUTY SHERIFFS TRAIL MURDERER OF CARMONA

Suspected Assailant of Aged Mexican Is Located

Deputy sheriffs are today hot on the trail of the alleged murderer of Rafael Carmona, a Mexican who was found murdered on the Frank Quirz ranch Thursday night. Deputy Sheriffs Reyes and Sepulveda, who have been assigned to the case, received information last night as to the identity of the man who fired the shot. They were also given information as to where the man might be located. Under Sheriff Biscailuz he said this morning that the deputies were expected to report to their chief about noon today and that it was more than a possibility that they would have the alleged murderer. The undertaking firm of Pulliam and Kiefer, who have the body of Carmona in their charge, were notified this morning by Coroner Nance that the date for the inquest had been set for Tuesday at 2 p. m.

First reports of the murder said that Carmona was seen to leave the home of Chenado Ruiz, Mexican, about 10 minutes before he was found lying in a pool of his own blood.

'FLING AT FINANCIERS

LONDON, March 11.—Justice Coleridge, at the end of a trial in which most of London's big financiers testified and intimidated witnesses on the other side were liars, confessed he had lost faith in the dignity of finance. "The giants of finance on closer investigations dwindle to very ordinary proportions," he summed up. "The men transact business in the most unbusiness-like way."

SCHOOL LAND DEEDS NOW IN ESCROW

Campus Addition at Acacia Is Last
Item

TOTAL COST IS $79,000

Location of Site for Grand View Is Now Under Way

Superintendent Richardson D. White reports that the board of education has placed in escrow the papers in connection with the last piece of property it has purchased, for school purposes, viz.: the Edwards property consisting of 2.210 acres for $11,500, to be added to the campus of the Acacia avenue school.

Since the board decided to make these additions to school grounds property values in Glendale have made great advances, yet in spite of that fact the board has been compelled to exceed its original estimate of $75,000 by only $4,000, which is considered a very good showing under the circumstances.

Mr. White reports that the foundation is in for the Acacia avenue unit and the contractor says he will have the roof on by the first of April.

Friday morning Architect Lindsey, the city engineer, and Contractor May, of May & Hellman, went up to locate the site of the school on the Grand View campus. Mr. May will start the building within a few days. The ten acres of land in the school site cost $9,500, and the approximate cost of the building will be $3,000 for four class rooms, administration offices, and lavatories; but the board is building for the future. Its space provided for lavatories and administration offices will be sufficient for the large school that may some time occupy the campus. The next unit there will cost considerably less even though building costs should remain at their present figure because these features will not have to be included.

The new bids for the Park avenue intermediate for which the board is advertising to be opened March 28, are to be submitted in two ways, one for the building complete as planned, and an alternative bid leaving out the auditorium. This course has been made necessary because of the inadequacy of funds to carry out the original program.

It is expected that Architect Alfred P. Priest will submit plans for the Columbus avenue unit of four class rooms, next Tuesday night. This will be the first unit of a full building of 15 class rooms, departments for manual arts and domestic science, administration offices, lavatories and an auditorium.

The building is to cover the site of the present school but at this time only one wing will be unit, and that will be located just south of the present building. When the next enlargement becomes necessary a similar wing will be built north of the present building. When it is time to complete the structure the present building will be torn down and the two wings will be united by a central building with an auditorium extending west.

LYING AND INVENTING DIFFERENT

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1931, by Associated Newspapers)

The red dog was horrified. He leaped from behind the schoolhouse steps where he and Tommy Peeler's wise old dog, Watch, had been curled up ever since the morning bell had called their little boys inside. His shoulders bristled with indignation. "I know!" he barked. "I know now. Dr. Muskrat was lying, lying, lying! There wasn't any Ark, or any Big Flood, or—"

"Whist, Pal, whist," Watch tried to soothe him. "Maybe there was, too. That wasn't the first time you'd heard tell of them."

"Well, there wasn't any oak-tree raft, or any whale, or any of the other wonderful things he told us about. I—I wouldn't have believed it of him. I'm going to tell him so."

He was talking so loudly the teacher had to ask whose dog he was. And Louie Thomson put his head out of the door and called, "Hush up, Pal! Go home, Sir!" in a very severe voice. Then he shut it behind him and said in the loving way which couldn't help but start Pal's tail to wagging. "Lie down, old fellow. I won't be very long; it's nearly noon."

So Pal curled up once more beside Watch, only growling: "I can't forgive folks who don't speak the truth. I'm going to find Chips Beaver and the Widow Squirrel and tell them it wasn't so."

"Wuff!" muttered Watch. "And what good will that do? They'll just say you're wrong; or maybe they'll think you're jealous because you're a dog."

"Well, there wasn't any oak-tree raft, or any whale, or any of the other wonderful things he told us about. I—I wouldn't have believed it of him. I'm going to tell him so."

So Pal Curled Up Once More Beside Watch.

cause the exciting things all happened to their folks. Then you'd be the liar, wouldn't you?"

"But you'd know I wasn't. And I'd know—"

"Yes, yes," Watch flopped a patient tail. "But that doesn't prove anything. They'd believe Dr. Muskrat because they want to—because he made out their great-grand-parents to be so remarkable a grand. So would you if he'd told as fine a story about yours."

"Not if it wasn't true," the red dog was still stubborn.

"Listen," said Watch. "I don't call this a lie. A lie is told to hurt some one, unless it's simply bragging. This is an invention. It just amused you all and passed the time."

"Then I'll tell them that," sniffed Pal.

"Tell them nothing of the kind. Just you make one up of your very own—one that sounds real, like Dr. Muskrat's did. Then you'll see who's the best at inventing. Let's begin—"

"At the ark," And now Pal was smiling.

LEAST EXPENSIVE, BEST BATTERY BUY

"It is literally true, that the least expensive battery is the best one you can buy," said Mr. Parker of the Autolelectric Service company, 115 West Harvard street. "If there is any doubt in your mind about this, ask people who have Exides in their cars how long their batteries last and if they have any trouble."

"You will find plenty of people to ask, for more cars leaves the manufacturer's hands equipped with Exides than with any other battery. Exide was the original starting and lighting battery for

DON LEE RECEIVES PICTURESQUE VISIT

Don Lee, distributor for the Cadillac automobile in Southern California, was honored the other day by a visit from the distinguished Count Antonio de la Mothe Cadillac.

"Out of nowhere came the count," said W. H. Court of the Court Motor company, 238 South Brand boulevard, "the idea being to join in the celebration of the 264th anniversary of his birth. After paying his respects to the famous American-made motor car, which bears his name, and the man who markets it in California, the count departed from whence he came. He carried a large French flag and was attired in a costume similar to that which he wore when he founded Detroit, back in 1701. On close resemblance he bore a marked resemblance to one of the local salesmen."

"The late model Cadillac flying both a French and an American flag, with the count sitting in state, attracted considerable attention when it stopped in front of the Don Lee establishment. The head of the firm and many of his organization came forth to greet automobiles, just as it has been the pioneer in other industries since there was such a thing as a storage battery. You will find Exide batteries that have been in service for years still doing business."

GOOD WEEK-END SHOW AT T. D. & L.

The T. D. and L. theatre vaudeville road show this week is a dandy. The Marcello Filipino Quartet of musicians is the main act and offers a real treat. Eva and Jack Arnold have a good bit of chatter. The feature picture is "The Last Payment," with Pola Negri.

Ray at his best in a comedy role is the description for "R. S. V. P.," the first National attraction at the T. D. and L. theatre tomorrow, Sunday, and Monday only. The star, who has won countless laughs as a comedian, repeats his former successes as a struggling artist who prefers his art to money; he is Jean Calhoun as his leading woman and does some effective comedy acting, in addition to presenting an extraordinarily attractive form.

the visitor, and as a photographer happened to be there just at the minute, a photograph was snapped as there was given a rousing cheering.

"In view of the fact that the motor car that bears his name is better known than the count himself, Don Lee took advantage of the occasion to state a few facts regarding this distinguished Frenchman. To those present."

Among the many places and institutions that have been named in honor of Cadillac is the Cadillac Motor Car company, the largest manufacturer of quality cars in the world, with a factory at Detroit now employing 7000 men.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

The G. O. P. Comes Out for a Great Public Boon

Every time the critics begin to shout that the Republican administration isn't accomplishing anything along comes some piece of news to shatter the charge. Only a few days ago allegations of lethargy in government departments were being hurled about Washington. President Harding himself was reported as greatly disturbed by the failure of his administration to make a showing.

Now comes this reassuring item: Washington. Standardization of beds has been decided upon by the Division of Simplified Practice of the Department of Commerce. Standardization of beds, it is declared, means much to bed and mattress manufacturers and the general public. In the past beds and mattresses have been kept within no well-defined bounds.

What could be more important? If there is anything to catch the popular fancy at this time and win widespread (not to say bedspread) support, it is a move for the standardization of beds.

During the war beds didn't make much difference. People had little time for sleeping. But now all is changed. Unemployment is so general that millions of citizens are spending most of their time in bed.

There seems to be no good reason to get out.

Think what standardization means to the individual home! Hereafter when a husband is sent out to buy a new slat he won't have to waste hours shopping all over town for the right length. There will be standardized slats for standardized beds.

Five and Ten Cent stores will carry spare parts for all recognized beds. Advance, bed, and be recognized!

Same thing will be true of mattresses. All you'll have to do will be to walk up to any mattress clerk and say, "I wish a Style D, Size 3B," and get it.

Same thing when picking out the bed itself. Just say what wheel-base you desire and the type of chassis fancied.

The boon to the public can scarcely be imagined. It is a triumph for the Harding administration.

The G. O. P. may go forward to victory in the next campaign under the slogan: "Bigger and Better Beds!"

Woodrow Wilson was greatly chagrined today when informed of the master stroke by the Grand Old Party.

"And so think," he complained, "that I never thought of it as a campaign issue."

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Menthosulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from eczema. Improvement begins at once, quickly shows. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Menthosulphur from any good drugist and use it like cold cream.

MAPS OF ROADS FROM COAST TO COAST FINISHED

Southern California Auto
Club Now Has Bridge
of Diagrams

From Fifth avenue, New York city, to any Main street in Southern California, a bridge of road maps for use by motorists has just been completed.

This is the largest set of road maps in the world and has been issued for the use of the motoring public throughout America by the Automobile Club of Southern California. There are 150 "strip" maps in the set, carrying the motorist either from the west coast to the east or from the east to Southern California.

At the present time the auto club's drafting department is completing the routing of the southern highways leading from Florida to California, or vice versa, so that motorists tiring of Florida may come directly west and enjoy the breezes of the Pacific.

Other maps which are being completed by the club for the use of the local motorists include the guides through the north by way of the Yellowstone and Canadian border. A new map has just been issued showing the great loop through the national parks of the west.

Good news for auto owners of Southern California is just out, which states that the auto club is about to complete a brand new desert map which will include all routes to, from and in Death Valley. Every motorist passing into the desert districts this spring and summer are advised to secure one of the club maps, which will be out next week, probably.

The Lincoln highway has also been mapped by the club for its entire distance—"coast to coast." The set of maps formerly mentioned carries the traveler over the famous National Old Trails highway, which is considered the best all-year route for Southern Californians.

Full information on any transcontinental travel is now available at the auto club office.

OLDSMOBILE CAR NEEDS ARE FEW

"The Glendale agency for the Oldsmobile does not maintain an extensive service department in connection with its show rooms because the Oldsmobile does not require a great deal of service," said a representative of the firm of J. C. Pollock & Co., local Oldsmobile dealers yesterday. "The service department at the agency is maintained principally for the purpose of making minor adjustments on cars after they are sold and for the oiling and greasing of these cars. Any Oldsmobile, no matter where it was purchased or how long it has been run is given 30 minutes free service in the service department of the local agency. Free service for 90 days is given on all cars sold by the local dealer."

J. C. Pollock and company took the agency for this automobile in the late fall of 1921 and since October have sold approximately 40 cars, light fours and sixes and three trucks. The manager of the service department stated that in connection with the sale of these 40 touring cars and three trucks that an average of but two of these cars a week are brought into the garage for service. This service, sought, he said, is mostly instruction in oiling and greasing the machine.

Motorists who place their new license plates in an improper manner on their cars are going to be liable to arrest in the near future, according to a warning issued by the safety bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

There is a right way and a wrong way to mount the plates, and those following the wrong method are going to get themselves into a peck of trouble, according to the warning.

Do not allow the license plate to be obscured in any manner, says the auto club advice. For instance, be careful that the front bumper does not hide the plate. This is a common occurrence and places the motorist in a ticklish position with the law.

Do not allow the license plate to become dirty or defaced so that it cannot be readily observed.

Do not let the spare tire conceal any part of the plate.

Be sure that the rear light of the car shines fully upon the license plate. This is important, warns the club, through its safety bureau.

Crank handles often obscure a portion of the license number, and this must be guarded against.

Remember that the license plate has to be 16 inches above the surface of the road.

Do not allow the extra tire rack to conceal any part of the plate. For any of these violations the motorist is liable to immediate arrest. According to word received by the auto club, all city, county and state police officers will be watching out from now on for these various evasions of the law. Look over your license plates now, Mr. Motorist, and avoid trouble.

$348 DURING CHALLENGE TO FORD READY

New Starr Wonder Car
From California Surprises East

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The $348 car which W. C. Durant promised three weeks ago that he would unveil in Washington, today is on exhibition in the Connecticut avenue showrooms of Harper Bros. Mr. Durant and a party of friends and associates, including his son, R. C. Durant, president of the Durant Motor company of California, arrived on a special pullman car to be present at the first showing.

"The new product is to be known as the Starr car, and is to be manufactured by the Durant Motors, Inc., under contract with the Starr Motor company, which controls the distribution of the car in the United States and its possessions," said Mr. Durant.

"The Starr car has created a great deal of interest among those who have seen it. They did not think that it was possible to build a car which embodies so many features of the higher price classes to sell in competition with the lowest priced cars heretofore on the market. It has a four-cylinder Continental Red Seal motor, and the touring car is built to carry five passengers in comfort. Mechanical features include a disc clutch, selective sliding transmission with three forward speeds and reverse, Timken bearings in front and rear wheels, together with a Timken axle, Hotchkiss type drive shaft. The "tabular backbone," an exclusive Durant feature, is incorporated in the frame, giving strength and rigidity to the body.

"The body of the Starr is of full streamline design, with a high hood and slanting windshield. It will be produced in all popular models. It has semi-elliptic springs, vacuum feed gasoline tank and is electrically equipped."

Since the announcement was first made, three weeks ago, many conjectures concerning the new car have been current throughout the country. The Starr car, as was expected, is a sensation, because it contains so many features that are not possessed by any other low-priced car.

Mr. Durant has promised quantity delivery by June 1, but declined to state which, if any, of his five plants would be used in its manufacture.

CAR COMPETITION KEEN THIS YEAR

"The year of 1922 will be a year of closer competition in the automobile industry and many cars will fall by the wayside. Standard make cars will have a big year," said D. H. Packer of the Packer Auto company, Glendale. Studebaker dealer yesterday in speaking of the prospects for 1922 in the automobile industry of Southern California. Mr. Packer stated that already sales at the local agency for the year have increased approximately 100 per cent over the sales for the same period for 1921.

He stated that closed cars are proving to be more popular this year than they were last year. Closed cars he said have increased in sales 50 per cent over last year. This increase is in proportion to the general increase.

The Packer Auto company is equipped not only to sell the Studebaker car but to give the owners of the Studebaker cars in Glendale a first class service. At present the shop at the rear of the sales room employs eight men, who are equipped with a technical knowledge sufficient to conduct and carry on the general repair and service department that was started by the Packer Auto company when they first opened as an agency here. Many of the men are not only good mechanics but are specialists in repairing and giving service to the Studebaker car.

Several of the latest model Studebakers are at present displayed on the floor of the South Brand boulevard salesroom and are winning favor with the automobile buying public. From the number of inquiries regarding the late models the prediction of Mr. Packer is that 1922 will be a big year for the dealers in standard make cars seems well founded.

GREASE SAVES MANY CARS

"The people of Glendale are just beginning to realize the value of having their cars washed and greased regularly," said Jack, manager of the club garage, 107 East Colorado boulevard, this morning. "There is nothing that will so quickly ruin any car as will permitting it to run dry. It is absolutely throwing money away to permit a car to be operated with all the lubrication it needs."

"Our oiling, washing and greasing rack has been in almost constant service since it was installed. This shows us that motorists in general are giving more thought to the care of their machines, which will surely result in longer-lived cars and better automobile satisfaction."

THE PARKERS PARTAKE.
N. S. Parker, who with Mrs. Parker arrived in Glendale just before Christmas, has joined the chamber of commerce and is identifying himself with the life of the town. They have purchased a home at 41 West Myrtle and are very much delighted with California and with Glendale which they think should be spelled with a very large G. They are enthusiastic.

LINCOLN EIGHT TO MAKE DEBUT IN GLENDALE

Jessie Smith Makes First
Announcement of New Machine

Another car is to be handled by the Jesse Smith Ford agency on West Colorado street, is the announcement coming from that company yesterday. This new car is the Lincoln eight cylinder machine. This announcement is made simultaneous with the announcement that Henry Ford has recently supplied the finances for the factory manufacturing this high class car.

As yet there are no Lincoln demonstration cars at the Ford agency and there is only one in Pasadena. Strenuous efforts to market this machine in Glendale will not be started, it was announced today, until a demonstration is received. Mr. Smith stated that in his opinion the new Lincoln is one of the finest automobiles in America.

There are two models manufactured at present, the touring car, built along the latest lines of automobile construction, and the Phaeton de Luxe, one of the nicest automobiles manufactured. Several new features mark both of these models of the Lincoln and members of the Jesse Smith sales force say that when the new car arrives and is demonstrated that it will be a "knockout."

ENCLOSED CAR IS MOST POPULAR

"It is the universal opinion among automobile dealers throughout the country that the enclosed car is destined to become more popular during the season of 1922 than ever before," said Lyman P. Clark, of the Glendale Motor company, Maxwell dealer, this morning. Judging from the reception of the enclosed cars at all of the shows, the sedan and coupe are to enjoy a popularity this year that is unprecedented in the history of the automobile industry. The most fastidious tastes as to the furnishing and equipment of enclosed cars can be suited and the fact that the enclosed type of an all the year round car, is making it more friends every season.

It is being realized that the coupe and sedan are not adapted simply for the winter season, but are suitable for summer driving as well. In every state in the country there comes certain months when dust clouds are present on the city streets and country highways. At these times the enclosed car protects its passengers and at the same time provides perfect ventilation.

"The sedan and coupe of the new Maxwell series fill all the requirements of the American motor car enthusiasts. This is due to their handsome appearance—both interior and exterior, together with their mechanical sturdiness. Every little detail that can add comfort to a trip via the motor car has been cared for in these new Maxwells."

MUD BOG IS TO BE PAVED SOON

Every auto owner in this part of the state who has occasion to stray from his own fireside, at some time or other travels the coast route. Good news is here for those who do.

According to an announcement just made by the touring bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California, preparations are under way for the paving of the mud bog on the coast highway near San Diego.

This has long been a sore spot on an otherwise pleasant tour along the ocean for thousands of eastern visitors—almost as bad, it is pointed out, as the famous corrugated highway which at one time was remedied by Oceanide on the same route.

Numerous complaints of motorists throughout the entire southern part of the state, in behalf of the eastern tourists to the coast, apparently have had some effect, for the auto club states that La Jolla and San Diego are both stirring themselves to action to complete the paving of this last important link on the coast highway which is of greater importance than is commonly supposed.

Various municipalities throughout Southern California are also waking up to the fact that some road improvement can be carried out to advantage within their own bailiwicks, according to the auto club, and a general clean-up or numerous small stretches of bad highway, which mar some otherwise perfect routes, is going into effect this spring.

Never before in the history of California has this entire section occupied such an important position as host to eastern motoring visitors, and it is indicated that the various counties are coming to realize this fact in the movement to improve local highway conditions.

motorists and came to Glendale that way, bringing a trailer and camping by the way.

Truths in Epigram

but how he lives.

and then, does not misbecome a

Some people are so fond of ill-luck that they

FLOWN GREATNESS

The late Emperor Charles seems to be less fortunate than his divine ally and royal friend, William Hohenzollern. The press dispatches report Charles to be in a state of actual beggary. With a wife and seven children to support, and the stark expected again to alight, he is without means to support his family. All of the royal possessions have been dissipated or lost and the world may be enlightened with the spectacle of an emperor in poverty and living off public or friendly bounty.

William, as we understand it, was a bit more forehanded. He took with him plenty of cash and its equivalent, and while he is condemned by public opinion to remain in exile, he does not have to keep wolves from the door. It is probably not true that he has had to earn money by wood-chopping.

Thus, as before, William has put it over his royal ally and friend. If it had not been for William, Charles would never have been in the mess he is today. Royalty in central Europe might have gone on for many years but for the unfortunate belief of William that he was divinely ordained to rule and to conquer the world. Had it not been for the big army and brilliant uniforms and rattling sabers of William, the Hapsburgs would not have sent that arrogant note to Serbia. That was the thing that spilled the royal beans, if we may be permitted to use such an expression when dealing with royal personages and things.

William has been a good deal of an evil genius. He got the world in general and his friends in particular into a lot of trouble. Few men in the world have wrought more of misery and suffering than this ill-thinking and arrogant and sword-rattling Prussian. The blood-and-iron doctrine of Bismarck, fostered and brought to its logical and natural result by a vain little mind such as William's, nearly toppled over the structure of European civilization.

There is a lesson in the Hapsburgs and the Hohenzollerns for any one who may choose to get it. It is not the lesson that strength is to be deplored, but that the misapplication of strength is to be hated and prayed against and struggled against. The world was not made to be ruled with blood and iron. It was made to be ruled with justice, fairness, tolerance and friendliness. Any reversion to the blood and iron doctrine means ultimate disaster. And the truth is for a people living at peace to learn and apply.

MOB LAW

There are means at law by which evils are to be remedied. That is what government is for, to remedy difficulties and right wrongs and punish evils under the law.

When night riders and hooded vigilantes and like means and agents resort to violence and threats and beating and such things to enforce the law or to improve conditions, as they believe, may be, they are striking at the very foundations of government and order.

If one body of men may associate themselves to enforce the law by threats and beatings and the like, then any body of men may declare themselves agencies for law and order and justice and righteousness. In the end we should have opposing bands of armed men practicing methods of violence.

There are instances in which the passions of people are so far aroused that mob law seems unavoidable. But consistent mob law is disastrous to any system of government.

A PERMANENT EPIDEMIC

The federal prohibition enforcement commissioner of Colorado is a broad-minded and sympathetic person, who declares through the state that no person shall die for the want of liquor. Further he declares that he proposes to see that any reputable physician may prescribe as much liquor as he thinks essential merely by calling upon the commissioner for the necessary authority.

The statement sounds as though it might have been inspired by the state immigration authorities, and sent broadcast through the land by the press it may result in a tremendous influx of population to Colorado. The man who is "dying for a drink," to use an old and familiar expression, will not have to die. The Colorado commissioner has said he is to be saved, if he can get a reputable physician to intervene in his case and save his life with a prescription.

The matter is of interest, as proving that doctors often disagree. There is the declaration of the American Medical association that there is no medicinal service rendered by whisky that cannot be as well or better rendered by some other drug. And then there is the statement of a Colorado physician that pneumonia has been prevented by giving whisky in liberal doses.

Naturally we want to save lives and no patient, whether suffering from influenza or any other disease, should be permitted to die if whisky will save him. Life is to be saved and always whisky has been held in many quarters to be a valuable remedial agent. Whether it is or not is for medical authorities to say. The legal authorities have always provided for the prescription of whisky by physicians, no matter how drastic the prohibition law.

We incline to the belief, however, that the cases of influenza will be more numerous than if the prescribing of whisky were not in favor. There will be many preliminary warnings of the approach of this disease, and many patients seeking prescriptions that will carry them past the danger point. We are not disposed to judge the disease, the physicians, the patients or the prohibition enforcement commissioner. We merely make the suggestion that the influenza epidemic in Colorado will be a long time subsiding, if ever it is brought finally under control, with the liberal and unlimited prescription of whisky.

STAYING OUT

Europe is disappointed over the refusal of the United States to sit at the table at the Genoa conference and become at once a participant in all of the political differences and squabbles of Europe. The reason given by Secretary Hughes, in his firm and courteous reply to the invitation, is that while eager to see and aid in an economic rehabilitation of Europe, the United States is constrained to believe the conference is more political than economic and for that reason the people of the United States would not favor joining in any political discussion or agreements touching the countries and states of Europe.

As a participant in a political conference, the United States would be at once plunged into European politics. And plunged into European politics, the future course of this government would be not at all what its founders designed or its people wish. The thing for Europe to do is to quit fighting and go to work. Lamentable as are conditions in countries like Russia, there is only one remedy and that is sanity, order, industry and a recognition of the laws of reason and good sense. What progress would be made in sitting at a political discussion with a Lenin or Trotsky or equally commendable representatives of the Bolsheviks?

If Europe is not disposed to work out its salvation, then the interposition of no power such as the United States could serve Europe. The question in Europe today and in the world is economic. It is all very well to send food by thousands of tons to Russia to save famine stricken people, but what is to be done to bring Russia permanently out of the slough of despond Russia must do itself, unless force is resorted to by other powers, and that is unthinkable.

We have our own troubles and are trying to solve them. Europe can solve its troubles if it will. But it cannot solve them with a renewal and recurrence of all the old political discussions, feuds and disagreements. The United States would serve neither itself nor Europe well by becoming a party to European political hatreds, feuds, pacts or disputes.

GHOSTS AND FAIRIES

It seems difficult to believe that persons in this day or age would give credence to reports of the activities of ghosts or "spooks" as they are more familiarly called.

Of course, there are no ghosts or spooks or haunted houses, except in the vitiated or inflamed or deluded imaginations of weak-minded or temporarily deranged people. There have never been any ghosts and there never will be. Neither have there ever been any haunted houses. Nor was any story of a ghost or haunted house ever inquired into but it proved the tale to be concocted, or to arise out of some easily explainable and natural happening, or out of an unsettled mentality.

Ghost stories may be good to tell before the grate fire about Halloween time. They may be good or may not be good, depending on the spirit in which they are told. Just as fairy stories are good for children to read and get imaginative stimulus from.

When we translate the ghosts to real life and the fairies to the actual ways and walks of childhood, it is time we put them both out of mind and went straight about the real work of the world.

When a woman can speak three languages fluently she is foolish to throw herself away on a man who understands but one.

The Devil and the Deep Sea

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Emile Amavel, director of industries in Barma, some time ago reported the following:

"I have succeeded in photographing a marine monster of the order 'cephalopoda,' which has been thrown up on this coast. This mammoth of the Indian ocean measured when alive nearly 30 metres in length and weighed about 30 tons. No one has yet been able to identify or to classify it scientifically. The natives, frightened by its fabulous dimensions, have been cutting it up with matchets for twelve days. What is this animal? It is the devil of the deep sea, which, according to the legend, used to attack barks and drag them to the bottom of the ocean? Its flesh is as hard as india rubber. It is probably several centuries old and a rare descendant from antediluvian times, when the marine fauna was of the most monstrous type."

Is there some truth, after all, in the legend of the Sea Serpent? At any rate, it is much more in the realm of probability that grotesque and unknown monsters habit the deep places of the ocean than it is that spooks, friendly and otherwise, wander among men. It is a thing we do not realize, that there is more life in the ocean than in the air.

The surface of the sea is a great curtain, which conceals from us a vast world, teeming with living creatures.

We catch a great many of them and destroy and devour them; but then they catch a great many of us, and probably enjoy eating us as much as we enjoy eating them.

The vast depths of the mighty waters have not been fully explored, and it is quite within the realm of possibility that there are jabberwocks and gazoziums hidden down there, whose acquaintance we have not yet made.

In fact, human life is surrounded by regions that trail off into mystery.

Within us, and about us, is the innumerable company of microbes. For all the inhabitants of the microscopic world have not yet been listed. Above us are the regions of the air, and more than one story has been told of palpable monsters that lurk there, and threaten too-daring aviators.

Most of the regions of the solid earth have been pretty well investigated, but there are depths of the sea no man so far has been able to plumb.

As a matter of fact, a large section of scientific opinion has long accepted the possibility of the existence of the Sea Serpent. Anyhow, it opens up a fascinating field for romancers and gives up something new to worry about in case we get to feeling too comfortable.

THE LISTENING POST

We have said in these columns once or twice that there is nothing new.

There are modifications and changes and amplifications. But whatever in the way of newness we think we have has existed in some form or other for all time.

There is nothing new in the way of energy. We have developed electricity. Harnessed it and made it serve us in many ways. But the energy of electricity is as old as the world.

Doubtless there were prehistoric thunderstorms. Before there were men of the present degree of intelligence.

Prehistoric man may have trembled and wondered at them. Just as animals do now.

Prehistoric thunderstorms were merely the displays of electrical energy waiting to be amplified and harnessed and developed. But the energy was there. It is not new.

We speak of the moving picture as something new.

When it is as old as seeing.

For as long as men have had eyes to see there have been moving pictures.

With the human eye as the camera.

Moving pictures more complete than any done with the camera.

For they have registered shade and color.

And the camera will not do that.

The camera will make a black and white picture.

But the tones and shades are lacking.

The camera will register in black and white. But it will not picture a rose.

SONGS OF THE POETS

"I Am Lonely"—By George E. Liot (1819-1880)

The world is great: the birds all fly from me,
The stars are golden fruit upon a tree
All out of reach: my little sister went,
And I am lonely.

The world is great: I tried to mount the hill
Above the pines, where the light lies so still,
But it rose higher: little Lisa went
And I am lonely.

The world is great: the wind comes rushing by,
I wonder where it comes from; sea birds cry
And hurt my heart: my little sister went,
And I am lonely.

The world is great: the people laugh and talk,
And make loud holiday: how fast they walk!
I'm lame, they push me: little Lisa went,
And I am lonely.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

SATAN'S NEW GUISE

[Philadelphia Public Ledger]

Whether hell is a real place or not continues to be debated among theologians, but a prominent Baptist pastor of Baltimore is sure that the devil still lives. In a pleasing shape adapted to his twentieth-century clientele.

This up-to-date devil has discarded the Mephistopheles apparatus of horns and cloven hoofs, forked tail and Turkey-red apparel. He is debonair in a dress suit; he is the glass of fashion; he is an adept in parlor tricks. He is scholar as well as gentleman, and his flawless courtesy and finished eloquence misguide immature minds away from religious tenets and pristine piety.

It is not strange that the devil should have changed his make-up. Any other villain whose rig has become too familiar to the traveling public does the same thing. He should have done it long ago. But he is still in time for the Lenten season. Look out for him. Don't let him turn you into an infidel or a voluptuary just because of his change of front. In the black heart of him he is the same old master of craft and cunning that you have known so long.

NO HIDE INDUSTRY

[Shoe and Leather Reporter]

There is no such thing as a hide industry seeking protection through a tariff. Hides are not made in response to demand. As many are taken off when prices are low as when they are high. Cattle are slaughtered because of the demand for beef, and the hides result incidentally. It often happens that when hides are scarce and high in price the take-off is small for the reason that the sales of beef are poor. Similarly when hides are in large accumulation it may be that the demand for beef causes an increased slaughter which makes more hides to lie in salt unsold. It is unfortunate that some of the best friends of free hides in Washington sometimes unconsciously play into the hands of the enemy by alluding to "the hide industry."

GREAT NATIONAL EVILS

It is a toss up whether the country has more to dread from congressional extravagance or the average congressman's weird and fantastic notions of economy.

WHERE LIES THE NEW WORLD

[From the Churchman]

There are still people in Europe and America who believe in the old method of keeping peace. They believe in preparedness, armaments, navies and shrewd diplomacy. They do not trust intelligence and moral suasion. Many of them are experts, military and diplomatic. The question for the plain citizen of every country to decide is whether they are willing to continue to pay the bills in blood and money for these gentlemen's idea of statesmanship and patriotism. How long are we going to furnish the capital, moral and material, for such men to squander? If the slogan went up from millions of throats in every country in Europe and in America: "We will fight no more wars," our experts would use their brains and conscience to better advantage at the council board. That grim decision, we hope,

By DELLA STEWART

Newspapers have what is termed the "morgue"—a department where the photographs of all prominent individuals are on file, together with a more or less complete account of the life and accomplishments of each, obituary fashion. So, if a sudden death occurs just at press time, the "morgue" is hastily visited, and the result appears in the edition. A bit ghastly—the idea? Just a detail of modern enterprise.

It's practically sure that, even if we are of the obscure variety of the genus human, our leading qualities are docketed in many minds. Our tradespeople, our business associates, our neighbors, our friends and families—all have their remembrances of different dealings with us. Each has formed a little private estimate of us—and some not so private. We do this with others, why resent the thought when connected with self?

Of course, there's the too curious person who, without other need than that of overweening curiosity, would delight to know even our most private thoughts, deeds and ambitions. Such a one will surmise when there is no definite knowledge—and tell his surmises for truth positive. Frying curiosity—we've all been its victims. It's one of the hardest annoying traits to forgive. Yet we find ourselves on the brink of such error many times, do we not? And if we overstep the result is so often regret for what we laid bare.

Every soul has a right to a certain limit of solitude, even in the dearest relations of life, just as every personality has a right to aloofness occasionally. Such conditions foster love and companionship rather than prevent it. The heart that holds some of its secrets is the one which has unknown reserves. Let's not always be trying to pull the curtain back.

will not be needed. The Washington conference is a good beginning. It has discovered to the diplomatic world that there are some implements more powerful than armies. In the path of that discovery lies the new world.

BY THEIR FIRST NAMES

[Chicago Evening Post]

The headline writers have added one more bit of informality to the cheerful and casual habits of America. They now speak of all women, in the news, by their first names. Miss Garden is always "Mary." To a similar honor they have now promoted poor little "Mathilde." As for "Fifi" and "Madeline" and "Mabel"—why, we've almost forgotten they have last names at all. Speak to the writers of the lines and their instant justification is that a first name, even if it be Madeline, is shorter than the last name, "Obenshain," with Miss or Mrs. in front of it. The answers would satisfy most Americans completely. The step is utilitarian, therefore it is all right. What more do you want? What worries us is that there are so many feminine Christian names running through the lines that we fear our brain will become so confused that we shall miss utterly the point of something or other that the ladies are doing. Which would be catastrophic—wouldn't it? We might miss the world's most important "news" (save the mark!) story of the day.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

Tucked away in the southern part of Nevada is the little railroad town of Las Vegas. It is a lively little community but between trains there is much opportunity for thought. It is one of those towns where the arrival of the train is an important event. It brings the mails and express, drops its passengers and food supplies and so the people of Las Vegas have reason to think in terms of railroading. The chief clerk to the general storekeeper of the Los Angeles and Salt Lake unit of the Union Pacific system has occupied some of his spare time in figuring the cost in tons of freight of the thousands of articles used in the operation of the railroad. He finds that in order to purchase one lead pencil it is necessary to haul one ton of freight ten miles. For a pint of ink a ton will be hauled 80 miles. For one track spike a ton will be hauled four miles. For one cross tie a ton will be hauled 260 miles. For one torpedo a ton will be hauled six miles. For one hand lantern a ton will be hauled 240 miles. For one fuse a ton will be hauled 32 miles. For one freight car wheel a ton will be hauled 3800 miles. For one monkey wrench a ton will be hauled 140 miles. For one machine hammer a ton will be hauled 212 miles.

Just by chance the other day we chanced into the office of that most important person, the chief of police. The chief was not busy and we sat down to chat with him. Soon a visitor was announced. It was rather a substantial citizen of the community who said that he had seen where a man was under arrest for securing money in a fraudulent manner. In his hand he held two checks. He stated that a man had called upon him and told such a hard luck story that he had advanced him something like $90 and he wanted to know if he had been "easy," as he expressed it.

The man under arrest was brought before him. He admitted having secured the money through the statement that his wife and children were starving. "And I gave you my check," asked the citizen. "Yes," replied the man. "Was your wife starving?" "No," replied the man. "How did you cash this check?" asked the citizen. "I deposited it in my bank in Los Angeles," replied the man. "You mean to tell me," asked the citizen in astonishment, "that you had a bank account at the time you told me your wife and children were starving and that you deposited the check I gave you in your bank?" "Yes," replied the man under arrest. "Did you consider me an easy mark?" asked the citizen in all earnestness. "Yes," replied the man. We will omit the explosive damn that followed and think of our departed friend Barnum and what he said about one being born every minute.

There is in Pasadena a strange sort of person, a highway robber, who appears to take a delight in holdups, which net him inconsequential sums like $1.45, $1.80 and sometimes $2 or $3. He operates in the early evening hours and his favorite pastime is to hold up the conductor-motorman of a one-man car at the terminus of the carline. He has turned this trick a number of times and never has made a haul of more than what is commonly termed chicken feed. This man, for a paltry sum, is taking the chance of serving a long prison sentence. He forces his demands at the points of a revolver, acts in the manner of an approved highwayman, making his getaway in the darkness with the small change. What sort of reasoning prompts a man like this is beyond our comprehension. For a sum so small that it is ridiculous this foolish person is opening the doors of the penitentiary to hear them clang upon him.

General John F. O'Ryan, organizer and commander of the 27th division which helped smash the Hindenburg line, recently took a toastmaster to task for reciting the triumphs of his war record. "No man's exploits in killing should be lauded now," he said. "We soldiers are not ashamed of the way we fought, but those of us who know anything know that fighting is not glorious. War is the denial of Christianity and of all the most sacred things in life. It exalts force. It thrives on lies. It is the product of hate and fear and cannot by any stretch of imagination be waged humanly." In this day of advanced thought and effort to bring peace on earth and good will towards men the utterance of General O'Ryan is most opportune.

Income tax figures reveal that there are 6639 millionaires in the United States. And there are 65 individuals who admit they have incomes in excess of one million dollars a year. What comment could a poor man make on these figures.

Speaking of millionaires, do you remember "General" Coxey who headed an army of unemployed men who marched on Washington? Haven't heard of him for some time, have you? No, well, the government has. He has made a proposal to the shipping board to turn over to his company 112 ships to be converted into oil burners, etc. Sounds as if prosperity had come to the "General" since the days of the long hike.

It is interesting to note that thirty years ago the average American took eight annual railway journeys. Now he takes twelve. Then he rode 24 miles each trip. Now his average is 38 miles. The railroads of the United States in 1920 carried 1,300,000,000 passengers. Statistics show that one person out of 5,673,000 carried was killed. This is rather a remarkable record.

According to the Southern Pacific railroad it costs the company sixty-nine cents before a patron orders a meal. Now we understand something that has always been a mystery.

"Making Wild Garlic Tame" is the title of an article in a magazine this week. "Tame Garlic Making Persons Wild" would be a suitable companion piece.

It is surprising what a lot of interest is taken in a dead project after Henry Ford shows signs of taking control. Before it was Muscle Shoals. Now it is Muscle Shall.

The Birmingham News says that when a man grows tired of sin he always becomes a reformer and urges others not to monkey with it.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

There is no doubt whatever in my mind that Bill was all wrong. I think he flirted with Gladys. I know he flirted with Gladys. I know it because I tried to flirt with her myself, and Bill beat me to it by a long mile. I think there was a period when he was pretty short and snappy to Agnes, who is Bill's wife. I suspect that one night—the night that Bill attended the dinner given by the remains of that athletic club he used to belong to when he was still an athlete—he came home pretty well tanned.

"I shall never forgive Bill," Agnes said to Mrs. Pilgrim next day. She wouldn't say what had gone wrong, but something had. Mrs. Pilgrim passed it on to me and I tried to cheat Bill into telling me the sad story but I got nowhere. Bill wouldn't talk. Neither would Agnes.

But—and here's the sour part—ever since then Agnes has treated Bill as though he were a cross between a bootjack and a fiend. She uses him now and then. She takes delight in using him. She thinks up errands for him to run. Between times she snarls at him and glares at him and nags at him. It is actually unpleasant for Mrs. P. and myself to be around them. Agnes is as mean as vinegar. She flares at him at the least excuse. Poor old Bill goes around as meek as a pup that has been detected in some wrong.

That is to say, he has been going around just that meek. But the meek thought is gradually wearing out with Bill. I can see it wear. He had been wrong and he knew it and wanted to get it right again. But no man on earth—or woman either—who has the courage and the backbone and the commonsense of an ordinary English sparrow will permit any one else to nag and snarl and quarrel and snap at him or her all the time. Enough is sufficient, as Weber used to say.

Agnes hasn't risen to this height of thought yet. She is having the time of her life, making Bill taste her very pretty little boot heel morning, noon and night. But she had best look a little out. Bill isn't the sort to go on tasting it definitely. No one else who is worth a tinker's curse is. The time will come when he will throw off the shackles. Agnes' nagging tyranny with a mighty blast.

And besides all this, Gladys would like nothing better than to hear that Agnes doesn't understand poor Bill.

Society

LODGES - CLUBS - CHURCHES

UNIQUE SOCIAL FOR NEW CHURCHMEN

A unique social in honor of new members of the Congregational church and designed to promote acquaintance, was given at the church Thursday evening by the social committee, of which Mrs. H. W. Yarik is chairman, and it proved highly entertaining.

The company was divided into groups and each group made responsible for some department of an imaginary newspaper called "The Daily Flu."

Charles Guthrie, who was made editor-in-chief, selected the name and wrote editorials.

Harley Shaw was made general news editor with a corps of contributors working under him.

Mrs. C. M. Calderwood headed the department of personals and social items. Peter Hanson edited the comic section, and Mrs. H. W. Yarik was advertising manager.

A half hour was allowed for the preparation of copy and then the paper was read, including lost, found and other advertisements reported by Mrs. Yarik, who announced that a number of persons were present who desired display advertisements in the next issue and who were prepared to give a demonstration of the things to be advertised.

The Parker School of Music was mentioned as a prospective advertiser, represented by Mrs. Lou Sherman as manager and by Charles Comfort, L. G. Sherman and members of the choir, who gave several numbers as a demonstration of the work of the school.

Mrs. E. D. Yard was introduced as manager of the Congregational Floral Shop and presented a bouquet of violets to each member who had joined the church since January 1.

Mrs. Blake Franklin, costumed as a gypsy and under the name of Madame Zaza, read the palms of several prominent members.

Rev. C. M. Calderwood, as director of the Calderwood School of Oratory, gave a description of a night in a sleeping car which contained a snorer, a very realistic performance which recalled many unhappy experiences of travelers.

The last prospective advertiser was the Acacia Tea Room, managed by Miss C. Lauderdale. For her use the church annex on the north had been converted into the semblance of a tea room, in which were small tables at which tea and wafers were served.

The attendance was large and everybody had a good time.

AERIAL POLICE BIENOS AIRES. By Mail to the United Press. Unique among prescriptions for apprehension of cattle thieves is that proposed by the chief of police of the province of Buenos Aires in a lengthy communication addressed to the president. This suggests an aerial police service, including triplanes equipped with machine guns and a heavy airplane for conveyance of prisoners from outlying stations, also four aerodromes or landing places at strategic points. The recommendation states that utilization of a "hunting airplane" would make extremely difficult evasion on the part of cattle thieves or bandits, as the broad, bare pampas is particularly suited to aerial observation.

Each is champion in her county.

of the Pacific Electric railway is inadequate, unsatisfactory and not sufficient to meet the desires and demands of the traveling public between Glendale and Los Angeles on the Glendale-Burbank line.

Second, they desire information substantiating the application wherein we state that the present fares and rates between Glendale and Los Angeles are too high to meet the approval of the present users and that the rates are detrimental to the city of Glendale, and that the growth and expansion of Glendale are and will be retarded owing to the present tariff or rate schedule of the Pacific Electric.

"Third, they desire to know and to have placed before them evidence as to the actual time required by passengers under the present system of motoring or necessary to be used, in order to reach the city of Los Angeles.

"Fourth, they desire to know whether or not there are sufficient cars and seats provided under the present system to permit passengers the privilege of seats en route.

"Fifth, they further desire to know the sanitary conditions of said cars, and the lack of comfort to the passengers or patrons using same.

"Sixth, in fact, they appear to want substantial evidence and testimony in order that in the event they render a decision in favor of applicant and grant the permit, that they may have ample and sufficient grounds for granting said permit."

"It is my desire at this time to secure the co-operation of the standing committees of the various civic bodies of the city of Glendale to meet with me within the next few days, upon a date to be decided upon in the very near future, as being a convenient date for the majority of interested committees, and at that time I shall outline and have a definite plan in form for such workers as may desire to co-operate with me for the purpose of securing such information."

"As per our understanding of recent date, I shall be glad to meet with the committee of which you are chairman at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening, March 10."

In acting upon this communication the committee adopted the following motion:

"That Secretary Rowley serve as a member from the railroad and transportation committee of the chamber of commerce to work with one member from each of the other civic bodies of the city, together with C. D. Bullock, manager of the transportation and motor bus service of Glendale, in the securing of information to be used in placing before the board of public utilities of Los Angeles the application for a permit to operate a bus line over certain streets of Los Angeles."

COL. SMITH SPEAKS SOCIAL DANCING IN SUNDAY FOR ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE UNIVERSITY SESSION

Famous Commander to Appear at Union Meeting at First M. E.

Col. Dan Morgan Smith, commander of the Battalion of "Death," first battalion, 358th Infantry, 90th division, who will address a union meeting at the First M. E. church Sunday at 7:30, is conducting a several months' tour of the Pacific coast under the auspices of the California Anti-Saloon League. That he is meeting with the same enthusiastic popular reception out here that has greeted him elsewhere is evident from letters and telegrams sent east. Unquestionably he has won for himself the title, "the world's greatest soldier orator." Furthermore, he is a man of the highest ideals and his address from beginning to close is an appeal for 100 per cent Americanism. The following is a sample of the many tributes that have been received:

"California State Normal School, Chico, Cal., Nov. 23, 1921.

"Dr. A. H. Briggs, 'Supt. Anti-Saloon League, San Francisco, Cal.

"Dear Sir:—I want to write you that I had the good fortune last Sunday to be one of a large audience to hear Col. Dan Morgan Smith, and that everybody was 'held in rapt attention.'

"There was what one might call a judicious compounding of information, description, wit and tactful appeal, a careful balancing of the past and things moral of the present, an address, excellently rounded.

"The general type of Col. Smith's appeal is that of the late Dr. Gaudier. With his war record back of him he has even a greater advantage.

"Chico will officially, through home organization, ask, even demand, his appearance again when the campaign is on.

"Respectfully yours,
(Signed) M. E. MERIAM,
"Student of California State Normal School."

PRICE CUTTING MAKES BIG SALES

Since the recent reduction in the prices of Overland and Willys-Knight automobiles, the firm of George T. Smith, agent for these cars in Glendale, has been working overtime to take care of the orders that have come in. These latest reductions bring the cut on these cars since September 1, 1920 to 47 per cent on the Overland and 40 per cent on the Willys-Knight, this being 11 per cent greater reduction than have been made in connection with any other automobile. The reduction on the Overland has been $485, while on the Willys-Knight the cut has amounted to $925 on open models and $1120 on closed designs.

"The manufacturers, who we represent," said Mr. Smith this morning, "are the leaders in automobile car values. While these cars have been reduced in price the quality of the material used and the lines and convenience features have been improved. The new Overland has the famous triplex springs, all steel body, baked enamel finish, etc., and altogether is considered by many as the leading light car in the first time in history the public has had the opportunity to purchase the exclusive Knight type of motor design. This motor is already in use by six of the leading American manufacturers and 27 companies in continental Europe. The Willys-Overland company is endeavoring to put this motor in the hands of the public at popular prices."

RAIN TESTS ALL BATTERY SERVICE

"There is no time when the storage battery is more necessary than in rainy weather," said Mr. Doll of the Psenner-Doll Auto Electric company, corner Chestnut and 10th, "for there is nothing more aggravating than to have to get out in the rain and crank the 'old bus' when a simple pressure on the starter button should do the trick.

"Then with regard to the ignition on your car, it is very often that a good strong battery will produce a sufficient spark between the points of the plug where it is needed most, while a weak battery will not give the proper kick. We are agents for the Philadelphia battery, which is absolutely one of the best and strongest batteries on the market today. Our service includes the caring and repairing for all makes of batteries and handling ignition work of all kinds. Our motto is, 'When your car won't start, call for us.'"

CAR TROUBLE NEEDS EXPERT SHOOTING

"You don't have to tell us what is the matter with your car," said Mr. MacGrath of the firm of MacGrath & Hunter, 312 South Brand boulevard. "Just call us and tell us there is something wrong with your car and we will show you how quickly we will find and remedy the trouble.

DODGE CARS ARE MOVIE ACTORS TOO

Waiting for "props" when the waiters are motion picture stars at six-figure salaries is expensive recreation, the managements of big western studios have discovered. "It is not hard to illustrate how valuable time is in the making of movies," says Bill Smith, superintendent of transportation for the big Vitaphone studios near Los Angeles. "Before we bought our present delivery equipment, one of our directors was on location and needed very badly. Ordinarily the run to the location would have consumed only 25 minutes, but the equipment we had at that time took an hour and a half. This comparatively short delay, however, cost us four or five hundred dollars in salaries and expenses, so it is absolutely essential that we have dependable delivery equipment.

"We have forty acres of ground, and when one considers that at any spot a director may call in for 'props,' for immediate use, it can be seen that we must be prepared to deliver the goods without the slightest waste of time."

"The big motion picture studio now has two Dodge Brothers cars in constant use, and, according to Mr. Smith, they are so adaptable to various uses demanded of delivery equipment in the motion picture industry that they are indispensable. "For the speedy delivery of anything from an envelope to a piano give me Dodge Brothers Screen Business Car," is Mr. Smith's way of putting it.

The Dodge car can be seen at the showroom of the George E. Clayton company, local agents for the Dodge.

Tommy and Billy had been fighting on their way home from school. The teacher received this note the next day:

"Dear Sir—As one of your scholars hit my boy in the eye with a stone, he can't see out of it. So will you please see into it?"

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat If You Feel
Backache or Have Bladder Trouble

Meat forms uric acid which exerts and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's noxious waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Adv.

IRRIGATION TOPIC OF DR. J. E. COLT IN CAL. FARMER

Former Head of State
Citriculture Department
Discusses Water

Irrigation is the theme of the March 1 issue of the California Farmer, which contains articles on more efficient irrigation methods by such recognized authorities as Dr. J. Eliot Colt, former head of the citriculture department of the University of California; Prof. J. W. Nelson and Prof. L. J. Fletcher of the division of agricultural engineering of the University of California. Irrigation of the home garden is discussed by Geo. E. Paget, editor of the garden and flowers department.

"Farmers are rapidly learning the role of soil moisture in crop production and appreciate the fact that without its control not much greater returns are possible in California with the long growing season than in other places with much shorter growing periods," says Prof. Nelson in his article on the "Importance of Soil Moisture." Dr. Colt on the other hand says that the California fruit grower is less efficient in irrigation than in any other orchard practice and sums up and corrects some of the common defects of irrigation.

Timely hints on care of poultry are given in this issue by F. M. Molby, the well-known commercial poultryman of Cudahy.

La Crescenta

LA CRESCENTA, March 11.—March 31 is the date set for the election of school trustees for this district as Homer A. Baldrige's term expires at that date. Mr. Baldrige is president of the present board and has been petitioned to serve another term. Other members of the board are C. E. Culbertson and Dr. B. H. Smith.

Miss E. Jenkins of Los Angeles will give a talk on Child Hygiene at the regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association at the school auditorium next Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. George Garson will move into their new home on Honolulu avenue next week.

Mrs. Jennie Howard who has been the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Mark S. Collins for the past two months, leaves Sunday for her home at Peak's Island, Maine.

Mrs. C. Butterfield of Seattle is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Singleton of Honolulu avenue.

The local schools closed the past two weeks on account of the illness of many children and two of the instructors, will reopen next Monday morning.

In honor of her sister Miss Della Bastable, Mrs. Harriet Bastable of Los Angeles avenue entertained a group of friends at dinner last Wednesday evening.

C. J. Young of Young's garage has ordered automobile plates with "La Crescenta" inscribed on them. Every one who drives a car should possess two and help put La Crescenta on the map.

Large Restricted Lots
$1150 to $1350
One-fourth Cash, balance 3 years

Two blocks east from new Union High School site. Beautiful, high, scenic home sites within reach of those with modest means.

All improvements in. Street work, sidewalks, water and gas included in above price.

These beautiful, slightly, picturesque home sites are only a short distance from the Eagle Rock-Los Angeles—by book—car line. The Glendale-Eagle Rock car line passes in front of the property with its 34c fare—by book—making the fare 8½ cents to Los Angeles. The Pasadena-Ocean Park Bus line passes the property, giving service to Hollywood and the Beaches.

One look at these beautiful home sites will convince you that others costing a great deal more are not more beautiful nor do they give a more beautiful, commanding view of the surrounding country. Why buy lots in low ground subject to flood waters or pay fancy prices for less desirable lots when these fine high lots can be had at this very moderate price? TO GET TO TRACT OFFICE go east on Broadway (Glendale) 1 block east of city limits of Glendale or call 639-73, OUR LOS ANGELES OFFICE, 1022 STORY BLDG., and we will call for you.

CASA VERDUGO COUNTY HIGHWAY FOLKS LOSE P. E. FIGHT PERMITTED NEAR CULVER CITY

Railroad Commission Declines to Act Against R. R. Company

The railroad commission dismissed the complaint of Casa Verdugo Improvement association against the Pacific Electric Railway company asking that the latter be compelled to lower its tracks on Brand boulevard at its intersection of Stocker and Dryden streets immediately north of Glendale. As the streets have not been dedicated to public use the commission held that it was without jurisdiction.

It is the confiding nature of some women that makes them want to tell you their family troubles before you have known them ten minutes.

Supervisors Petition Is Granted by Railroad Commission

The board of supervisors of Los Angeles county was given permission by the railroad commission today for a public road at grade across the tracks of the Pacific Electric railway at Walnut drive near Culver City.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

THE HEALER

JAMES W. FOLEY

I've a wonderful, wonderful doctor; I go to see him with my ills. And he gives me a smile that is helpful; it's better than powders or pills. He hears me recount all my symptoms; he listens with patience to me. And never disturbs my recital and gives me his rare sympathy. He nods me his head while I'm talking; my heart is a little bit slow. Or it flutters sometimes as I tell him and he nods and he says: "Yes, I know!" Then he listens and hears how it's beating; and he smiles in a comforting way. And says: "Don't you worry, Old Fellow; the old heart will last all your day!"

I went there and it was a flutter; I was sure it was badly awry; Then he sounded and pounded and thumped me and looked with brotherly eye; He saw I was worried and fretted and he said when his sounding was through: "Don't worry, Old Fellow, I beg you; that heart will last long as you do! He said it with force and decision; he was not in doubt, not at all. And I felt I was getting the value a full hundred-fold of his call. As he said with a smile that was helpful: "With the care than I know you will give, I am sure that your heart will do duty and last you as long as you live!"

I am feeling much better, much better; yes, better than I have for years. For that comforting speech of my doctor's has charmed quite away all my fears.

I haven't a pulse beat or flutter that is not just as it should be. And the look of serene peace upon me is something delightful to see. Yes, he is a wonderful doctor; I went to him worried and sad. And he told me I'd live all my lifetime with the kind of a heart that I had.

"You don't need to worry," he told me. "I'm saying as doctor and friend. Whatever your fears or your worries your heart will hold out to the end."

TUJUNGA PARK IS 1922 IS INDICATED TO HAVE AN AUDITORIUM AS GOOD YEAR SAYS TANNER

Intend to Make Park Beauty Spot of So. California

TUJUNGA, March 11.—If present plans are carried out, Tujunga will soon have a park second to none in Southern California. It is intended to so improve Gollindrina park, at the foot of Sunset boulevard on the highway, as to make it one of the most beautiful spots in the valley.

For the first step in the proposed improvement, an auditorium is to be constructed over the platform built for the Moon Festival. This platform is 60 by 70 feet and plans call for the erection of a rustic building over the entire floor. In order that it may be up to date in every respect, a motion picture projecting room is to be provided for.

Provide for Highway Widening
With almost every week seeing the starting of some new business building on the highway, it has become imperative that measures to make it wider be taken. It seems destined that this be one of the main business districts of Tujunga, and it is already becoming unsafe for pedestrians. The pavement is now barely wide enough for two autos to pass, and with cars lined up along the roadway in front of the stores, the danger increases.

The Verdugo Hills Business association plans to take this matter up at its next meeting and will attempt to secure the aid of civic bodies in La Crescenta, La Canada, Pasadena, and other cities along the highway.

Business Association Luncheon
A luncheon of the Verdugo Hills Business association will be held Tuesday noon, March 14, in the basement of the Community church. In order that ladies of the Tujunga Women's club, who are to serve the luncheon, may know how many to provide for, it is requested that members of the association who expect to be present leave their names and 50 cents each with D. J. W. Clark at the barber shop next to Cozy Cup last night.

Motorized Transportation on the State Highways will be the subject of Traveling Lecturer Platt of the Motor Carriers' association of California, who will be the speaker.

Roads Being Open
Roads being built by the Home Extension company in the Palmdale tract will soon be open, according to E. L. Sweet, construction engineer for the company. These roads will provide a way of entrance to Tuna canyon and a means of getting out on some of the points overlooking the valley. A home-site tract is being opened in Tuna canyon.

New Tract Sale Fast
That Tujunga people are quick to take advantage of new tract openings is evinced by the fact that almost all of the 14 lots put on the market by A. D. Kirschman were sold in a week's time, taken mostly by local people. These lots are near the highway and are considered very desirable.

Parent-Teacher Meeting
The Parent-Teacher association will hold an executive meeting on Monday, March 13, for the transaction of important business.

And Then It Snowed
The rain which started falling last night turned into snow this morning. A little over an inch fell up to 10 o'clock.

NEW APPAREL HOUSE TO OPEN

A new business house will open its doors to the people of Glendale next week. M. D. Herington, Jr., who is now operating stores at San Pedro and Long Beach, will, on Wednesday or Thursday, open at 214 East Broadway, the room formerly occupied by the Rollin Pin bakery, a store in which will be carried a complete line of men's and boy's ready-to-wear clothing, and men's high grade made-to-order wear, in addition to everything along the men's and boy's furnishing line, suit cases, trunks, etc. Everything to be carried by this establishment will be the very latest along its particular line.

J. Rothchild, who has been in the men's and boy's furnishing business for the past 25 years, will have complete charge of the opening of this store and may continue in charge indefinitely. Mr. Herington, Jr., has been in this business for the past 20 years and the store that will be opened in Glendale will be the headquarters of a chain of stores to be established in Southern California, two of which are already in operation. Within a short time Mr. Herington will move with his family to Glendale and will make this city his permanent home. He is a member of lodge No. 99, B. P. O. Elks of Los Angeles. Mr. Herington is a progressive merchant and promises to sell his goods as low if not lower than Los Angeles prices for similar quality goods.

Carpenters' Local to Meet—Carpenters' local No. 563 will hold open meeting Monday, March 13, 8 p. m., at the K. of P. hall, corner of Park avenue and Brand boulevard. Speakers for the evening will be Richardson D. White, superintendent of schools, who will speak on the Towne-Sterling bill that is before congress. This bill is to have a secretary of education in the U. S. cabinet. Vice Principal A. L. Ferguson of the local high school will speak on the benefits of the night school to the working class. Ladies of the Woman's Union Label League will serve refreshments.

Buick Sales for 2 Months Show 300 Percent Increase

If sales for the past two months of this year are any indication of the year of 1922 it will be one of the best that the automobile industry has ever experienced in Southern California is the opinion of William Tanner of the Tanner & Hall company, local Buick dealers.

According to Mr. Tanner the sales for the local agency during the two months passed have increased approximately 300 per cent over the same period for last year. The demand for enclosed cars is 50 per cent greater. The open car, however, is still leading the field in demand.

The used car market in Southern California is very good and Mr. Tanner attributes this to the fact that the people are beginning to realize that there is a certain value to a used car and are willing to accept prices for their used machines that enable the dealer to resell them at a fair price after overhauling and repairing them. All used cars sold by Tanner & Hall company are sold with a positive guarantee says Mr. Tanner. This is because every car sold by them is overhauled in their own garage by experienced, competent men.

At present there are six men employed in the service department of the Tanner & Hall agency, giving service to Buick owners exclusively, in addition to overhauling used cars for the agency. These men are all Buick specialists.

Mr. Tanner said yesterday that the new 1922 model six cylinder enclosed Buicks are coming from the factory with a maroon colored body that has greatly added to the general appearance of the car.
